MISSION SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO

A Printable Student Activity Book
for Distance Learning

Dear Students and Parent/Teachers:

We hope you like our printable at home Passport Explorer! We hope it helps you to learn more about the Mission San Juan Capistrano from afar. We really hope you will be able come and see this amazing landmark in person and that all your hard work in school and in this kit helps make your future visit even better.

Please contact us for more information on our distance learning programming or to book your class field trip.

We hope you stay safe and well, and let us know what you think about your videos, passport, and other hands on activities found on our website to help you all have a fun filled distance learning experience at home! Let us know your thoughts by emailing us at education@missionsjc.com.

Sincerely,
Mechelle Lawrence Adams, Executive Director

LIVING AT THE MISSION IN 1790

It was much different from what the average kid does today. Here's an example of life then . . .

I am awakened by the ringing of the bells. I meet the others for morning Mass and afterwards, we eat our breakfast of atole, a nutritious gruel made of ground grain. Afterwards, we go to the Mission plaza for our daily work assignments.

The older boys and men carry out the tasks of working in the fields and attending to the sheep and cattle. Men also work at scraping hides, making tallow, candles, soap and crushing olives. Young women spend their day weaving things like clothing, blankets and baskets.

Lunch at noon consists of pozole, a thick stew of meat. Then everyone settles down for a two-hour siesta. Work resumes from 2:00 to 5:00 pm. After work, the bells ring to remind us to go to the Serra Chapel where we pray. Supper is served at 6:00 pm with another helping of atole.

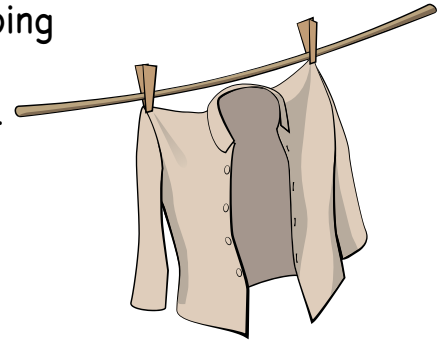

After supper, we spend two hours singing, dancing and socializing. At 8:00 pm, the bells ring announcing the evening curfew and the end of another busy day at the Mission San Juan Capistrano.
